EDITORIAL

Adrian Gilbert

Welcome to the fifth edition of the International Journal of Anglo-Indian Studies. The present edition of the Journal begins with an interview of Dr. Christopher Hawes by Glenn D'Cruz about Hawes's book Poor Relations. The interview of Hawes is followed by an article written by Professor Roy Dean Wright and his son Ehren. Professor Wright has become a regular contributor to the IJAIS and his article deals with a group of aged Anglo-Indians and how they are maintaining their identity in an old persons' home in Delhi. The third article is by Blair R. Williams who suggests that in a generation or two there won't be any Anglo-Indians left. Further, Williams argues that if the Anglo-Indians are to merge into their host societies they must do so at a high socio-economic level. This issue of the IJAIS concludes with a critique of Hawes's work by Dr. Megan M. Mills who was one of the early contributors to the IJAIS.

CONTRIBUTIONS

The editor will consider for publication short articles or research notes dealing with the Anglo-Indians. The issues covered in the articles may range from history, sociology and psychology to econometrics. Preference will be given to pieces emphasising current research data that might not otherwise be published. Material should be sent to the Editor - International Journal of Anglo-Indian Studies, The Centre of Anglo-Indian Studies, 1 Kurt Place, Noble Park, Victoria, Australia. 3174. Alternately, material may be sent directly via E-mail to the Editor [**Dr. Adrian Gilbert**](mailto:Dr. Adrian Gilbert). Individuals or organisations wishing to cite the research published in the International Journal of Anglo-Indian Studies, either in full or in part, should first obtain permission from the Editor.
